Learning to code facial behavior with “The Facial Action Coding System”

The Institute for the Scientific Analysis of Facial Behavior (Gnosis Facialis, Saarbrücken, Germany) offers a blended learning course to prepare you to do the FACS Final Test. The course is held according to the manual describing the 'Facial Action Coding System – FACS' (P. Ekman, W. Friesen and J. Hager (2002)).

The course is scheduled as two 2-day presence workshops in Saarbrücken/Germany and an online- learning period of about 8 weeks.

In the first workshop (I) the participants get are introduced to the structure and issues of the FACS, and are taught to code the Action Units.

During the online-period the practice scorings of the different chapters of the FACS Manual are done, evaluated and discussed.

In the second workshop (II) the participants are trained with respect to their individual needs and an introduction to the EmFACS-coding is given.
